The Journal of the Australian Mathematical Society began publication in 1959, and from 1975 appears in two series, Series A (Pure Mathematics and Statistics) and Series B (Applied Mathematics). Series B is published in volumes comprising four quarterly parts. Information about Series A and other publications of the Society may be found on the inside back cover.

It is the editorial policy of Series B to accept papers in any field of applied mathematics and related mathematical sciences. Novel applications of mathematics in real situations are especially welcomed. All papers should include some indication of applicability, and an introduction that is understandable by non-specialist readers from the whole applied mathematical community.

Special Issue on Telecommunications

This Special Issue gives recognition to the multidisciplinary field of Teletraffic Science; a field embracing Applied Mathematics, Engineering and Computer Science. Essentially it is concerned with traffic problems in a variety of communications networks. It is a field attracting an increasing number of Australian and Overseas researchers. The mathematical challenges arising from the rapidly changing communications technology will provide an endless supply of relevant and absorbing Applied problems.

The papers in this Issue (and some others in the next) indicate part of the rich variety of applicable mathematics in Teletraffic Science.
