

THOMAS CARLYLE

"Calvinist Without the Theology"

ELOISE M. BEHNKEN

This study focuses on Thomas Carlyle as a radical religious thinker during the nineteenth-century breakup of the traditional Christian world view.

A THEOLOGY OF ENCOUNTER

The Ontological Ground for a New Christology

CHARLES B. KETCHAM

Can Christians affirm their belief unequivocally without denying the beliefs of others? They can, this book holds, by claiming that Christian revelation is both reasonable and faithful to tradition, but not necessarily infallible or exclusively definitive.

TORMENTED MASTER

A Life of Rabbi Nahman of Bratslav

ARTHUR GREEN

Arthur Green's book – the first full-length critical biography of the Bratslav master – is at once a study in the psychology of religious personality and in the history of Jewish mystical theology. While making use of the researches of such earlier scholars as Zeitlin, Weiss, and Piekarz, whose works are available only in Hebrew and Yiddish, Dr Green has undertaken a thorough re-examination of the Bratslav sources, primarily Nahman's own writings and those of his leading disciple and successor, Nathan of Nemirov (1780–1845).

The Oxford Dictionary of Saints

D. H. Farmer

This new dictionary gives concise accounts of the lives, cults, and (where appropriate) the artistic and literary memorials of about 1,000 saints who lived or died or were venerated in the British Isles. The introduction gives a brief account of the tradition of hagiography in England, and traces the history of the cult of saints from the earliest Christian martyrs through the Middle Ages and the Reformation to the reform of the Roman Catholic Calendar in 1969. The Oxford Dictionary of Saints is at the same time a reference book for the curious inquirer, a starting-point for the serious researcher, and an irresistibly interesting bedside book for the general reader. £7.50 forthcoming

The Religious Imagination and the Sense of God

John Bowker

In this book John Bowker tries to summarize why the study of information process and systems behaviour yields important insights into the way in which religious traditions perpetuate themselves through time. This theme is worked out in a detailed consideration of some formative moments in the traditions of four major religions – Judaism, Christianity, Islam, and Buddhism. £11.50

The Episcopate in the Kingdom of León in the Twelfth Century

R. A. Fletcher

This is a study of the bishops who held office in the kingdom of León during the period of 'ecclesiastical reform' which stretched, broadly, from the pontificate of Urban II to that of Innocent III. The book is based on documents drawn from national repositories and local ecclesiastical archives, which for the most part have not previously been published. £9.50 Oxford Historical Monographs

Ascetics, Authority, and the Church in the Age of Jerome and Cassian

Philip Rousseau

Asceticism became a familiar feature of the Christian Empire in the century following the conversion of Constantine. There were extremists, in a sense, in the deserts of Egypt and Syria, and more moderate men and women leading lives of prayer and poverty in the cities and the surrounding countryside. Many of these acquired with time positions of influence and authority while retaining their ascetic character. This book examines the way in which authority was defined and exercised in ascetic circles, beginning with Egypt, and it describes three processes: a growing emphasis on the community life; the development of an ascetic literature; and an adaptation of ascetic ideals that made them useful in a wider social setting. £9.50

NOTES FOR CONTRIBUTORS

1. Contributions and books for review should be sent to the Editor, Professor H. D. Lewis, King's College, Strand, London, WC2R 2LS. Books published in America should be sent to Professor J. E. Smith, Department of Philosophy, Yale University, New Haven.
2. Articles submitted to the journal should in general be between 5,000 and 10,000 words long, though articles outside these limits will be acceptable if there is some good reason for their exceptional length or brevity. Articles in two or more parts may occasionally be accepted provided each part is independently intelligible. They should normally be in English.
3. Submission of an article is taken to imply that it has not previously been published, or is not being considered for publication elsewhere.
4. Contributions should be clearly typed in double spacing, preferably on A4 paper, with a wide left-hand margin. The typescript should be prepared to accord as closely as possible with the typographical conventions of the journal.
5. Footnotes should be used sparingly: in general, to give sources of direct quotations, references to main authorities on disputable questions, and evidence relied on for a new or unusual conclusion. They should be numbered in one sequence throughout the article, and should preferably be typed in double spacing at the end of the article.
6. Contributors should keep one copy of the typescript for correcting proofs.
7. First proofs may be read and corrected by contributors provided that they can give the Editor an address through which they can be reached without delay and can guarantee to return the corrected proofs to the Editor, by airmail where necessary, within ten days of receiving them.
8. Correction should be kept to an absolute minimum. It should be confined to errors of the typist or printer unless the Editor authorises otherwise.
9. All contributors of articles receive 50 free offprints. Reviewers will receive five or more offprints of their reviews.
10. If rejected manuscripts are to be returned, stamps or international coupons should be sent to cover postage, but it would normally be simpler just to retain a copy.
11. Contributors of accepted articles will be asked to assign their copyrights, on certain conditions, to Cambridge University Press, to help protect their material, particularly in the USA.
