Maudsley Lectures and Lecturers

In 1920 Sir James Crichton-Browne gave the first Maudsley Lecture when he spoke about the current state of psychiatry. Since then, with a few exceptions, such as the years of World War II, there has been a Maudsley Lecture each year. The majority of these have appeared in the Journal of Mental Science or the British Journal of Psychiatry. They offer the views of leading psychiatrists on a wide range of psychiatric topics.
