The International Journal of Law in Context now features an exciting new section entitled ‘Law in other contexts’. This section is dedicated to making available specially commissioned reports of socio-legal research in places where English is not the first language. In this way the journal hopes to bring attention to work which may not be easily accessible to those without knowledge of the relevant language (and culture).

The companion journal to the Law in Context book series.
The Journal of African Law has been in existence for over 55 years and in that time has followed changing trends in law and legal reform. The earlier focus on legal pluralism and customary law has evolved to include a focus on issues of international law, post conflict resolution, constitutionalism and commercial law.

In recent years the journal has published articles on the Sharia debate in Nigeria, the new constitutional dispensation in Southern Sudan and case notes including on the rights of indigenous peoples under the African Charter on Human and Peoples’ Rights. The Journal welcomes articles on all legal issues pertaining to the African continent in its entirety.

Legal Theory

Editors
Matthew D. Adler, Duke University, USA
Larry Alexander, University of San Diego Law School, USA
David O. Brink, University of California, San Diego, USA
Scott J. Shapiro, Yale Law School, USA

Legal Theory draws contributions not only from academic law, but from a wide range of related disciplines in the humanities and social sciences, including philosophy, political science, economics, history and sociology. Topics covered fall mainly into the broad categories of analytical and normative jurisprudence, doctrinal theory, policy analyses of legal doctrines and critical theories of law.

Firmly established as one of Europe’s leading journals in the field, the Leiden Journal of International Law (LJIL) provides a forum for two vital areas, namely international legal theory and international dispute settlement. It is unique in providing the most comprehensive coverage of the world’s most important international tribunals in The Hague (such as the ICJ, ICTY, ICC and others) and elsewhere, as well as examining new trends in international legal thinking. LJIL is essential reading for academics and practitioners who need to stay abreast of recent developments in these areas.
