A Sense of Things

The Object Matter of American Literature

Bill Brown

“A daringly original study of ‘things’ in American art and thought at the turn of the last century, A Sense of Things opens vistas of speculation that will inspire American cultural studies for many years to come. The literary analyses at the center of the book—works by Mark Twain, Frank Norris, Sarah Orne Jewett, and Henry James—are enhanced and brilliantly illuminated by an extraordinary array of insights from philosophy, anthropology, visual art, social history, and material culture. In this powerful, courageous, and absolutely compelling work, Bill Brown delivers a stunning new interpretation of the passage of American culture, in the broadest sense, into the complex modernity of the early twentieth century.”

Black, White, and in Color

Essays on American Literature and Culture

Hortense J. Spillers

“Hortense Spillers has been one of the central shaping forces in African American feminist theory and criticism for the past two decades. Each of us in the field—both colleagues and students—have profited greatly from her bold, insightful, and original interpretations of what it means to be black and a woman and dare to speak or write. Spillers’s voice has played such a fundamental part in contemporary critical discourse that one can hardly believe that her work has not been collected before. But Black, White, and in Color was well worth the wait. Its publication only reaffirms Spillers’s pivotal role as a major thinker in African American letters and literary theory.”

Literature after Feminism

Rita Felski

“Gives feminist criticism a public voice. Disproving its critical caricatures while dealing squarely with its weaknesses, Felski explains what feminist criticism is all about. This timely and useful book carries out an important political and intellectual task, and is an absolute pleasure to read.”—Toril Moi,
Duke University

The Mourner’s Song

War and Remembrance from the Iliad to Vietnam

James Tatum

“The classicist James Tatum has taken two numinous texts, Homer’s Iliad and Maya Lin’s Vietnam Memorial, and studied them in their various dimensions along with other voices like Robert Lowell and General Grant, creating something new out of man’s obsession with war and memory that roves back—like the rose—through so many wild centuries to our origins and the titanic wrath of Achilles before the walls of Troy.”

This new anthology contains the tools students need to read, comprehend, and enjoy the best the world has to offer — including thematic groupings of literature from all over the world, social and historical contexts, comparative timelines, abundant maps, hundreds of images, and much more. It's the first anthology to acknowledge the wide geographical and chronological range of material students are being asked to cover in the world literature course — and then do something about it.

- Six paperback books — available in two packages or as individual texts — correspond to the six periods most commonly taught. Each book features a striking two-color design that showcases the literature, highlights pedagogical features, and sets off the many maps and illustrations to best effect.
- Superb collection of complete longer works, plays, prose, and poems represents the best literature of all time available in English or English translations from around the globe. Unique “In the World” clusters emphasize social and historical contexts.
- Practical and accessible editorial apparatus helps students understand what they read and allows them to place literature in a larger context. Resources inside the anthology include Time and Place boxes, Bibliographies, Connections questions, and a Glossary of Literary and Historical Terms. An extensive Instructor's Manual and a rich Web site, World Literature Online, provide additional support.
