THE PARTING OF THE WAY
Lao Tzu and the Taoist Movement

For the first time in English the whole of Taoism is explicitly and comprehensively described as its various elements are woven into a comprehensible pattern. This is a pioneering book: presenting the philosophy of the first Taoist, Lao Tzu, in contemporary terms it clears new ground and establishes new frontiers.

The Illusion of the Epoch
MARXISM-LENINISM AS A PHILOSOPHICAL CREED
H. B. Acton

‘An admirable book, both in its lucidity and in its objectivity.’ Leonard Woolf (Political Quarterly).

‘This is a very good book. . . . It is both pleasant and exciting to follow the author’s skilful dissection of the morbid tissues of this modern illusion.’ Economist.

The Later Philosophy of Wittgenstein

DAVID POLE

Despite its profound influence upon much contemporary philosophy, Wittgenstein’s later thought, contained in his posthumous writings, confronts the reader with some formidable difficulties. Dr Pole’s introductory study expounds and criticises his most central and characteristic themes, and appends a briefer treatment of his distinguished English disciple, Professor John Wisdom.

The author is Lecturer in Philosophy at King’s College, London.

Benedict de Spinoza: the Elements of his Philosophy

H. F. HALLETT

A new interpretation and exposition of the whole range of the philosopher’s thought, beginning with his doctrine of Being, proceeding to his theory of Knowledge and concluding with his ethical doctrines. ‘Professor Hallett is to be thanked for using a lifetime of familiarity with Spinoza to make his hero’s philosophy, if not necessarily more acceptable, at least considerably more intelligible, than it is often made to appear.’
