

The North American Conference on British Studies

The Journal of British Studies, founded in 1961, is published by the University of Chicago Press under the auspices of the North American Conference on British Studies (NACBS). It was the result of the imaginative generosity of a Trinity College alumnus, Frederick E. Hasler (Hon. LL.D. 1957), who contributed funds to the college for the specific purpose of establishing a learned periodical in the field of British history.

The North American Conference on British Studies is a scholarly society affiliated with the American Historical Association and open to anyone in the United States and Canada interested in British civilization in its several aspects: historical, archaeological, literary, artistic, political, and sociological. Its North American constituency comprises about eight hundred members drawn from the fifty states and ten provinces. Affiliated with the parent organization are seven regional conferences (New England, Middle Atlantic, South, Midwest, Western, Pacific Coast, and Northwest), each having its own offices and programs and with a combined membership of more than two thousand. The Conference convenes at least once a year in the autumn, usually in joint session with one of its regional affiliates. It seeks to encourage the serious study of British history, literature, and politics, as well as allied subjects, and among the general reading public through meetings, book prizes, and association with likeminded organizations in North America and Britain and through its publications program.

The Conference sponsors a wide variety of publications. Another journal, Albion, issued four times a year at Appalachian State University, Boone, North Carolina, and sent to all members of the parent organization, includes articles, proceedings of all meetings, and book reviews. The Conference's newsletter, the British Studies Intelligencer, also sent to members, is published at Georgetown University, and contains notices of meetings devoted to British studies, news of appointments, moves, and retirements, and notes on current publications and research in progress. Other publications appear periodically and will be noted at such times.

The Conference awards the following book prizes: the British Council Prize in the Humanities ($750), awarded through an annual grant by the British Embassy, Washington, D.C., in association with the British Council in the United Kingdom, and given to the best book published in the preceding year by a North American scholar in any aspect of British studies; the John Ben Snow Prize in History and the Social Sciences ($750), made possible by an annual grant from the Snow Foundation and given for a book in British history, politics, economics, or the history of ideas; and the Walter D. Love Memorial Prize ($150) for the best scholarly article in any field of British history. Nominations for any of these prizes may be made to the Executive Secretary of the NACBS, Professor Diane Willen, Department of History, Georgia State University. Authors must be residents of Canada or the United States, but their work may appear either in North America or abroad.

Information about membership in the NACBS can be found on the copyright page of this journal.

The Celebrated Mary Astell An Early English Feminist

Ruth Perry

Foreword by Catharine R. Stimpson

“Ruth Perry’s new biography of Mary Astell (1666-1731) is an event in the history of women’s studies. This is the first modern full-length study of a writer who has with justice been called ‘the first feminist’. Perry discusses fully all of Astell’s writings, not only her best-known work, A Serious Proposal to the Ladies. The discovery of new manuscript material is good news; the generous transcription of Astell’s letters and poems is in itself sufficient to make this book indispensable to scholars.”—Margaret Anne Doody, Princeton University

“This richly documented biography of Mary Astell, pioneer thinker and writer, will become a central text in the history of feminist thought. In probing Astell’s ideological contradictions as a political conservative and a feminist analyst, Ruth Perry supplies us with an authentic, rare portrait of late-seventeenth-century life and the female intellectual experience.”

The Dilemma of Style Architectural Ideas from the Picturesque to the Post Modern J. Mordaunt Crook

This challenging book confronts one of the central problems of architectural theory: the nature—and necessity—of style. Ranging widely over English architecture during the last two hundred years—Georgian, Victorian, Edwardian, Modern—Crook explores the way in which generations of architects and theorists have searched for a key to the conundrum of style.

Family Fortunes Men and Women of the English Middle Class, 1780–1850 Leonore Davidoff and Catherine Hall With a Foreword by Catharine R. Stimpson

In this exemplary social history, Davidoff and Hall, focusing on the development of family and gender roles, provide a vivid, engaging portrait of middle-class culture in the nineteenth century. They argue that a new and highly articulated system of sexual difference, stressing separate spheres for men and women, shaped middle-class strategies for wielding power and remaking the material world—from the organization of domestic architecture to the search for safe income to support vulnerable female dependents.

Lady Rachel Russell

"One of the Best of Women"

Lois G. Schwoerer

Award-winning historian Lois G. Schwoerer has written a biography that illuminates both political life and the lives of women in late-Stuart England.

Lady Rachel Russell (1637-1723) was regarded as "one of the best of women" by many of the most powerful people of her time. Wife of Lord William Russell, the prominent Whig opponent of King Charles II who was executed for treason in 1683, Lady Russell emerged as a political figure in her own right in the Glorious Revolution and throughout her forty-year widowhood.

Male relatives and friends gave Lady Russell access to the centers of political and religious power; through personal initiative, she circumvented some of the gender restraints her culture imposed and capitalized on the opportunities available to her.
