Newcomen Awards in Business History

Presented by
THE NEWCOMEN SOCIETY IN NORTH AMERICA
in cooperation with
THE BUSINESS HISTORY REVIEW

Two Newcomen Awards in Business History are offered annually for articles published in the Business History Review. The First Prize, of $250, is awarded the article judged, according to the rules outlined below, to be the best of the year. The Special Award, of $100, is for the best article by an author who is not more than 35 years of age and who has not published a book.

Prize articles are selected by a panel of judges composed of a representative of The Newcomen Society and members of the Advisory Board of the Business History Review. No member of the Advisory Board or editorial staff shall be eligible for a prize, and articles so authored will not be considered in the judging. Authors eligible for the Special Award shall also be eligible for the First Prize, but in no event shall both prizes be awarded for the same article. The Advisory Board reserves the right to withhold the Special Award in the event that eligible articles do not, in the Board’s judgment, merit prize consideration. The awards program is administered by the editorial offices of the magazine.

Criteria for selection include: originality, value, breadth, and interest of contribution, quality of research materials and methods, and quality of presentation.

UNIONISM AND RELATIVE WAGES IN THE UNITED STATES

An Empirical Inquiry

H. Gregg Lewis. In a careful study of this much-debated subject, Mr. Lewis offers numerical answers to four of the most pertinent questions: By how much have labor unions increased the average wage of union labor relative to the average wage of non-union labor? How variable were these wage effects of unionism during the last forty years, and what caused the variations? To what extent have unions affected in different proportions the wages of different industries? Has unionism increased or reduced the inequality in the distribution of wages among all workers?

AMERICAN ENTERPRISE AND SCANDINAVIAN ANTIMONOPOLY LAW

By E. Ernest Goldstein  With American business penetrating into various areas of the free world at an ever-growing rate, this book has particular timeliness. American executives and their lawyers must know more about foreign antitrust laws, especially in Western Europe; yet access to knowledge concerning those laws is impeded by the language barrier and by the reluctance of many countries to reveal their administrative processes.

Happily, the three Scandinavian countries — Denmark, Norway, and Sweden — have been willing to expose their administrative processes to full public scrutiny, providing an ideal laboratory. Dr. Goldstein relies on data obtained through questionnaires and interviews with business and government officials and much other original material to present the history and administration of antitrust laws in those three countries, placing particular emphasis upon the techniques of cartel registration, the obligation of foreign firms to register as dominant powers, resale-price maintenance, and refusal to deal. In a valuable country-by-country analysis of case studies he describes the impact of local legislation upon industries in which American-owned firms are prominent.

THE BUSINESS HISTORY REVIEW

The Newcomen Society in North America, in cooperation with the Business History Review, announces a prize of $1,000 and scroll to be awarded in 1964 for the best book on the history of business published in the United States during the years 1961–1963.

For the purposes of this award, "the history of business" will be interpreted in its broadest sense, including not only the history of firms or industries, but books tracing interactions of businessmen, analyses of business philosophy or behavior, and studies of the adjustment of businesses and businessmen to their economic, political, and social environments.

Criteria for selection will include contribution to knowledge, depth of analysis, soundness of reasoning, clarity of style and organization, and general readability and format.

The committee to select the recipient of the 1964 Thomas Newcomen $1,000 Award in Business History is composed of: Professor James P. Baughman, Managing Editor, Business History Review, Harvard Graduate School of Business Administration; Mr. Stanley van den Heuvel, Trustee, The Newcomen Society in North America; and Professor Arthur M. The Entrepreneurial Spirit in Rhode Island

Once vigorously creative in adapting to environmental deficiencies or change, Rhode Island businessmen became increasingly passive and defensive as the 19th century progressed. The evolution of this initially dynamic spirit and the effects of its erosion on Rhode Island's economy form a suggestive study of the interaction of businessmen and their environment over time.

PETER J. COLEMAN

Entrepreneurship and Western Development

As an important business figure in the development of the West, Micajah Williams' career illustrates the interlocking character of public and private economic interests during the early 19th century. This article suggests comparable functions of entrepreneurs such as Williams in public-works agencies and profit-oriented firms, and argues that the state canal enterprises served to recruit and train a significant number of western business leaders.

HARRY N. SCHEIBER

Systematic Management

In developing techniques and guides for many of the regular or routine activities of managers, the Systematic Management movement of the late 19th century performed an important service for American business. The movement's response to breakdowns in the internal co-ordination of manufacturing firms was especially significant and forms the basis for Professor Litterer's analysis of the relevant literature.

JOSEPH A. LITTERER

A British Firm on the West Coast

The success of Balfour, Guthrie & Co. in mobilizing British and American capital for productive investment contributed importantly to the economic development of the Pacific-coast region of the United States. The changing economic patterns of that region emerge through Professor Rothstein's analysis of the firm and its managers' actions and responses, from which a broader understanding of the problems and direction of foreign investment in the American West is possible.
