
The New Liberty

Survival and Justice in a Changing World

Ralf Dahrendorf. Director of the London School of Economics and a former Commissioner of the EEC, Dr. Dahrendorf is one of the leading sociologists of our time. Of these six lectures, comprising the 1974 BBC Reith Lectures, he explained: "I want to examine the condition of advanced societies, and the chance for its improvement in the light of real opportunities of human liberty. If we seem unable to solve our social, economic, and political problems—those of survival and justice—it is not our abilities which are at fault, but the ossified structures of a society in which progress so often turns into bureaucracy." He insists that to achieve a new liberty demands a broad change in the way we view history—a change from an orientation determined by expansion to one bent on improvement. April. About $5.95

Women in Chinese Society

Margery Wolf & Roxane Witke, Editors. This multidisciplinary work represents the first scholarly attempt to provide a baseline for understanding the massive changes in Chinese women's lives in our time. Topics include 17th-century attitudes toward women, a rural "anti-marriage" movement, women writers of the 1920's and 1930's, and the effect on rural women of the advent of the People's Republic. Studies in Chinese Society. $12.50

Indian and White

Self-Image and Interaction in a Canadian Plains Community

Niels Winther Braroe. This is the first full-length study to approach the subject of contemporary Indian and White relations from a symbolic interactionist perspective. In analyzing the attitudes and behavior patterns of a small band of Cree Indians and the White ranchers and townspeople living nearby, it provides a unique view of the way each group maintains, without overt conflict, a sense of self-respect and ethnic identity. Conflict Sociology

Toward an Explanatory Science

by RANDALL COLLINS

In this important work, Randall Collins tries to remedy what he terms the excessive fragmentation and topicality of sociological research and the confusion of explanatory goals with ideological, practical, and aesthetic ones. He documents just what it is we know about explaining stratification, informal status cultures, sexual and age roles, organizations, politics, mobility, the distribution of wealth, and intellectual communities. The result is a unified view of what sociology is and should be: the author calls it "conflict sociology."

Specifically, the book is a four-pronged work that incorporates: a general explanatory theory for sociology; a non-ideological synthesis of the theoretical perspectives of Marx, Weber, and Goffman, along with accumulated empirical evidence; a unification of macro- and micro-perspectives; and an overview of the current scientific status of sociology.

CONFLICT SOCIOLOGY is a work that promises to stir up controversy in the academic community. It should be read not only by professionals and students of sociology, but also by political scientists, economists, anthropologists, and others interested in keeping abreast of the latest sociological perspectives.

Flight to America

by KRISTIAN HVIDT

A Volume in the STUDIES IN SOCIAL DISCONTINUITY Series

This book is primarily devoted to a study of the social conditions of the 300,000 Danes who emigrated to America before 1914, along with the background of the society they left. Based on personal data from 172,000 emigrants registered by Copenhagen police from 1868 to 1900 which was in turn sifted through computers, the book offers surprising and new statistical analyses. Then, by comparing the results with corresponding material from Sweden, Norway, and other European countries, it manages to place the entire phenomenon into perspective.

A skillful blending of statistical information, observations on organization, mechanisms, and incentives of migration, and portrayals of personal experience—FLIGHT TO AMERICA will most likely become a prototype for future studies on mass movements.

Comparative Studies in Society and History is a forum for presentation and discussion of new research into problems of change and stability that recur in human societies through time or in the contemporary world. It sets up a working alliance between specialists in all branches of the social sciences and humanities. Debate and review articles bring the general reader in touch with current findings and issues.

NOTES FOR CONTRIBUTORS

Contributions may be descriptive, analytical or theoretical. Any article not in itself comparative may be accepted if it lends itself to comment that will place it in comparative perspective. Correspondence with the editors prior to the submission of articles will help to enable them to obtain such comment or a companion study. Emphasis in comparative studies may be either on similarities or, if these are significant enough and call for some recasting of generalisations, on differences. All contributions and editorial correspondence should be sent to the Editors, Comparative Studies in Society and History, Department of History, University of Michigan, Ann Arbor, Michigan 48104.

Two copies of each contribution, preferably accompanied by a stamped, addressed envelope, should be submitted. Both text and footnotes should be clearly typed with double spacing and wide margins; footnotes should appear on separate pages at the end of the article. Illustrations may be included by arrangement with the editors.

Contributors will receive 50 offprints bound in the journal covers. Any additional offprints must be ordered on receipt of the first proof.

ISI Tear Service, 325 Chestnut Street, Philadelphia, Pennsylvania 19106, U.S.A. is authorized to supply copies of separate articles for private use only.

Claims for missing issues will be considered only if made immediately upon receipt of the subsequent issue.
