

International Journal of Law in Context

The International Journal of Law in Context is the companion journal to the 'Law in Context' book series. It provides a forum for interdisciplinary legal studies and offers intellectual space for ground-breaking critical research. It is not committed to any particular theory, ideology or methodology and invites papers from a variety of standpoints, ideologies, perspectives, and methods. It publishes contextual work about law and its relationship with other disciplines including but not limited to science, literature, humanities, philosophy, sociology, psychology, ethics, history and geography. The journal aims to explore and expand the boundaries of law and legal studies.

Submissions

Research articles

Please submit your article using the ScholarOne system:

Contributors are responsible for obtaining permission to reproduce any materials, including photographs and illustrations, for which they do not hold copyright and for ensuring that the appropriate acknowledgements are included in the manuscript.

All contributions in the journal are peer-reviewed.

Law in other contexts

Authors interested in submitting a piece to the 'Law in Other Contexts' section should read David Nelken's editorial in Volume 8, Issue 1 for advice on what these articles should cover. This article is found with the Instructions for Contributors.

'Law in Other Contexts' articles should be sent to:

Professor David Nelken,
King's College London,
Strand, London

Email: david.nelken@kcl.ac.uk

Copyright

The policy of IJLC is that authors (or in some cases their employers) retain copyright and grant Cambridge University Press a licence to publish their work. In the case of gold open access articles this is a non-exclusive licence. Authors must complete and return an author publishing agreement form as soon as their article has been accepted for publication; the journal is unable to publish without this. Please download the appropriate publishing agreement here.

For open access articles, the form also sets out the Creative Commons licence under which the article is made available to end users: a fundamental principle of open access is that content should not simply be accessible but should also be freely re-usable. Articles will be published under a Creative Commons Attribution license (CC-BY) by default. This means that the article is freely available to read, copy and redistribute, and can also be adapted (users can “remix, transform, and build upon” the work) for any commercial or non-commercial purpose, as long as proper attribution is given. Authors can, in the publishing agreement form, choose a different kind of Creative Commons license (including those prohibiting non-commercial and derivative use) if they prefer.

Reviews

The journal publishes book reviews of 1,000 to 4,000 words and longer review essays. Please submit books for review, actual reviews or ideas for review to the Reviews Editor:

Special issues or themed sections

The journal also welcomes proposals for special issues or themed sections of the journal. We encourage you to look at past issues to see examples published by the journal in the past. A complete special issue will typically contain six articles and an introduction but shorter themed collections within a standard issue are also acceptable. Anyone with a proposal of this kind should contact one of the Editors-in-Chief.

Your proposal should include:

- the title of the special issue or themed section
- the rationale for this proposal
- an overview of the collection
- the titles, authors and ideally an abstract for all proposed articles
- your expectations for word count
- when you expect all content to be ready to publish
- a confirmation that you understand you will be expected as Guest Editor to review and edit each contribution

All proposals will be reviewed by the Editors-in-Chief who also reserve the right to share with external reviewers.

Should your special issue or themed section be accepted, as Guest Editor of the issue or section you will be expected to:

- work to a deadline which has been pre-agreed with the Editors-in-Chief
- keep the Editors-in-Chief informed of how work is progressing
- have each potential contribution double-blind peer reviewed
- provide the reviews for each article alongside the final articles
- content edit each article and put it into house style
- ensure each article is complete including title, author name, abstract, all references complete
- submit only articles that are publishable and ready for production

The Editors-in-Chief reserve the right to choose not to publish all or some of the articles if they are not satisfied they meet the journal's quality standards.

Manuscript preparation

Articles should be written in English. They should not have been published already, nor should they be under consideration elsewhere.

Authors, particularly those whose first language is not English, may wish to have their English-language manuscripts checked by a native speaker before submission. This is optional, but may help to ensure that the academic content of the paper is fully understood by the editor and any reviewers. We list a number of third-party services specialising in language editing and/or translation, and suggest that authors contact as appropriate.

Please note that the use of any of these services is voluntary, and at the author's own expense. Use of these services does not guarantee that the manuscript will be accepted for publication, nor does it restrict the author to submitting to a Cambridge published journal.

Each article should be anonymised and accompanied by the following information on a separate sheet:

- the title of the article
- the author's name, affiliation, institutional address and country, together with an e-mail address, and telephone and fax numbers
- an abstract of 100-150 words
- a Conflicts of Interest declaration that is relevant to all contributing authors. See below instructions about what this declaration should look like.

Articles should be no more than 12,000 words, including notes and references.

Please include 3 to 6 keywords to be published with your paper. The first keyword should be the relevant sub-field of law (for example family law). The second keyword should be any non-law discipline the paper engages with (for example sociology). The next keyword(s) should be any sub-topic/niche topic within this (for example children's rights). Any other keywords should address further themes, methodologies or specifics of your paper. If your paper focusses on a particular case or piece of legislation or considers a particular geographic region then those should be mentioned.

Authors should include a Conflicts of Interest declaration in their Title Page.

- Conflicts of Interest are situations that could be perceived to exert an undue influence on an author's presentation of their work. They may include, but are not limited to, financial, professional, contractual or personal relationships or situations.
- Conflicts of Interest do not necessarily mean that an author's work has been compromised. Authors should declare any real or perceived Conflicts of Interest in order to be transparent about the context of their work.

- If the manuscript has multiple authors, the author submitting the Title Page must include Conflicts of Interest declarations relevant to all contributing authors.
- Example wording for a Conflicts of Interest declaration is as follows: “Conflicts of Interest: Author A is employed at company B. Author C owns shares in company D, is on the Board of company E and is a member of organisation F. Author G has received grants from company H.” If no Conflicts of Interest exist, the declaration should state “Conflicts of Interest: Author A and Author B declare none”.

Articles must be word processed and double-spaced.

Any articles containing material subject to copyright restrictions other than those owned or controlled by the contributor must be accompanied by appropriate permissions from the relevant copyright holder(s).

For referencing use the Harvard-style system. Surname and date should be cited in the text, with a page reference where relevant, together with an alphabetically-ordered end list.

Use the following style in the Reference List:

Dworkin R (2000) Sovereign Virtue. Cambridge, Mass: Harvard University Press.

Daniels C R (1999) ‘Fathers, Mothers and Fetal Harm: Rethinking Gender Difference and Reproductive Responsibility’ in Lynn M Morgan and Meredith W. Michaels (eds) Fetal Subjects, Feminist Positions. Philadelphia: University of Pennsylvania Press, 83–98.

Macaulay S (2003) The Real and the Paper Deal: Empirical Pictures of Relationships, Complexity and the Urge for Transplant Rules. Modern Law Review 66, 44–79.

Citations in new editions of previously published works should include the date of the original edition and the new edition in the text and in the reference list e.g. Mill (1859/1989)

Footnotes should be used rather than end notes. Each time a case is referred to in the text, the case report reference should be set out in a footnote. One report reference is sufficient.

References to UK statutes should be made as follows:

Matrimonial Causes Act 1973, s.25

Statutory instruments should be referred to by name and date (i.e. short title) followed by the number e.g.

Local Authorities (Smallholdings) Order 1974, SI 1974/396

Tables should be presented on separate sheets at the end of the article and should have short descriptive titles. Figures should be clearly numbered and should have explanatory captions. The author must indicate where Tables and Figures should be placed in the text.

Charges apply for all colour figures that appear in the print version of the journal. At the time of submission, contributors should clearly state whether their figures should appear in colour in the online version only, or whether they should appear in colour online and in the print version. There is no charge for including colour figures in the online version of the Journal but it must be clear that colour is needed to enhance the meaning of the figure, rather than simply being for aesthetic purposes. If you request colour figures in the printed version, you will be contacted by CCC-Rightslink who are acting on our behalf to collect Author Charges. Please follow their instructions in order to avoid any delay in the publication of your article.

Proofs

Only essential typographical or factual errors may be changed at proof stage. Resist the temptation to revise or add to the text. The publisher reserves the right to charge authors for correction of non- typographical errors.

Offprints

No paper offprints are provided, but the corresponding author will be sent the pdf of the published article. Print offprints may be purchased at extra cost at proof stage.

Open Access

Please visit <https://www.cambridge.org/core/services/open-access-policies> for information on our open access policies, compliance with major funding bodies, and guidelines on depositing your manuscript in an institutional repository.
