Reproductive cloning: science and science fiction

Questions to stimulate reflection

Do you believe that there are any good reasons to bring human clones into the world?

Do you think that cloning will ever be seen as just another method of assisted reproduction?

Can you think of two reasons why someone might say that clones do not have free will?

Why will clones always have 'confused and ambiguous' family relationships?

Is the fact that clones will always have confused and ambiguous family relationships reason to believe that reproductive cloning should be banned?

Do you think that reproductive cloning will ever be morally acceptable?

To what extent do you think that the media and science fiction have contributed to popular views on cloning?
